COURSE DESCRIPTION

This class deals with commercial production of nursery crops (container-grown, field grown, and those few grown in protected structures) and their routing and management through the commercialization chain until transplant in their urban landscape setting. The intention is to take a look at the entire production and management chain, and incorporate aspects on some of the benefits and ecosystem services “ornamental” plants and trees provide at the end of this nursery-to-landscape/consumer chain. While the focus is on plants/crops under "managed ecosystems" in agriculture and urban settings, contrasts and comparisons will be made with plants/trees growing in native habitats/ecosystems. In other words, the expectation is to provide a more holistic approach to one of the most economically relevant agricultural commodities (green industry) in New Jersey. Participation in field trips (visits to commercial nurseries and walking tours on the SEBS-Cook Campus) is required.

Assignments: Assignments not turned in by due date will be subject to grade deduction. Assignments include field trip reports that describe the facility visited, what they grow, things learned, and critiques.

Semester paper: Students will choose a topic (plastics, water pollution/recycling, environmental footprint, agro-chemicals, invasive plants, or other topic pertinent to the course) and write a 2000+ word paper that critiques four or more papers (from scientific journals and technical/trade magazines) on the topic. The paper will also include a design of an experiment (objectives, material and methods).

Learning goals assessment: Specific questions on exams will be used to assess student knowledge of all course learning goals. The semester paper students will evaluate course learning goal 4. The percentage score on these assessments will determine the level of mastery: >90% outstanding; 80-89% good; 70-70% satisfactory; <69% unsatisfactory.

ACADEMIC INTEGRITY

The university's policy on Academic Integrity is available at <http://academicintegrity.rutgers.edu/academic-integrity-policy/>

The principles of academic integrity require that a student:

- Properly acknowledge and cite all use of the ideas, results, or words of others.
- Properly acknowledge all contributors to a given piece of work.
- Make sure that all work submitted as his or her own in a course or other academic activity is produced without the aid of impermissible materials or impermissible collaboration.
- Obtain all data or results by ethical means and report them accurately without suppressing any results inconsistent with his or her interpretation or conclusions.
- Treat all other students in an ethical manner, respecting their integrity and right to pursue their educational goals without interference. This requires that a student neither facilitate academic dishonesty by others nor obstruct their academic progress.
- Uphold the canons of the ethical or professional code of the profession for which he or she is preparing.

Adherence to these principles is necessary in order to ensure that:

- Everyone is given proper credit for his or her ideas, words, results, and other scholarly accomplishments.
- All student work is fairly evaluated and no student has an inappropriate advantage over others.
- The academic and ethical development of all students is fostered.
- The reputation of the University for integrity in its teaching, research, and scholarship is maintained and enhanced.

Failure to uphold these principles of academic integrity threatens both the reputation of the University and the value of the degrees awarded to its students. Every member of the University community therefore bears a responsibility for ensuring that the highest standards of academic integrity are upheld.
